Your Prexy Speaks

In this Chatter you will find the Constitution and By-Laws proposed by Bill Hammer, our Chairman of that Committee, and adopted by your Board of Directors at the regular September meeting. This step is drastic in that we have become of age and shall divide into separate chapters. We can now have chapters in Tucson, Mesa, Ajo, Gila Bend, Cholla Bay and any other location where there are ten (10) interested people (some of these places mentioned have more than that) who will grow and help with the one idea of a progressive Cholla Bay Sportsmen's Club. The Constitution and By-Laws state the aims and principles of our over-all organization.

Before our meeting in November, your Nominating Committee will get together and suggest to you the members we believe will work the hardest for our Club in the coming year. This Committee, as suggested by your Board of Directors is: Ed Smith, Chairman, Bill Hammer, Bill Blair and Bob Taylor. If you have suggestions, contact one of the above. We have many members in our organization who will make fine officers and want to help. Further, some criticism, and I'm sure it was meant as constructive, has been heard as to a clique running the Club. We are a democratic organization; nominations will be from the floor at our November meeting and ballots will be mailed in time to be returned and counted at our regular December meeting. The new officers will be installed at this meeting and they will start the new calendar year in January. Those who were at our regular meeting in September were advised that your Board of Directors changed our election year (as they are allowed to do by our present By-Laws) to coincide with a calendar year. Tucson has agreed to have the same calendar year for their officers. You will, of course, vote on the new proposed Constitution and By-Laws at the same time your votes are cast for the new officers. Let me emphasize that nominations should be made from the floor, and we hope there are many, by those interested members. It is your duty to come to our November meeting to nominate and in December to help elect. There are two things our folks are against: one, some one ramrodding them into doing something they don't really want; and two, putting something over on them that they don't fully understand. Now is the time to stand up and be counted.

We spoke to Presidente Eduardo Ibarra last week about the robberies of our houses, cars and trailers at Cholla. Sr. Ibarra stated that a Puerto Peñasco policeman is to patrol Cholla both night and day and we hope the loss of prop-

Our Board Splinter, Dick Gardner, will probably explain about the road. Frank "Pancho Tecate" Lopez's truck got stuck while being loaded with rock and in place of dumping the load and unsticking the truck before the tide came in, his helpers (Frank wasn't there forgot and let the tide cover the entire engine, etc. Possibly now its running again and the road in front of the radio shack is filled; also the Grand Canyon in front of our house. I hope!

The September Board Meeting was held at President Taylor's home on Sept. 9th; present were Taylor, Earley, Schmidt, Valentine, Gardner, and Hammer. Our treasurer reported as of Sept. 1 we have a bank balance of $1087.00.

The board approved a motion appointing Katharine Hitchcock as Chairman of the annual Colorado River Run to be held on Oct. 5-6 from Blythe to Yuma and return. The Board also passed a motion to repair the Cross

The Board also adopted the Calendar year for dues and Officers terms, with nominations in November and elections in December so the new officers can take over in January. Dues will be $10.00 per year plus $2.00 if the wife would like to join, after July dues will be $6.00 plus $2.00 for wife for the remaining part of year. Children may join for $2.00 per year.

Bill Hammer's much revised Constitution and By-Laws were accepted by the board and will be printed in the CHATTER for vote by the membership in December's election.

Mexican Holiday

by Bob Glover

Thanks to Erle Stanley Gardner, we had a most enjoyable vacation this year. Mr. Gardner, primarily famous for his mystery fiction recounting the adventures of Perry Mason, is also one of the leading publicists of the peninsula of Baja, California. He has written at least four first hand accounts of his travels and discoveries on this peninsula, which he says is longer than the Italian peninsula by some 70 miles. His first book on Baja, THE LAND OF SHORTER SHADOWS is out of print and I have had no success in obtaining it from the Phoenix Library. The other three, HUNTING THE DESERT WHALE, HOVERING OVER BAJA and THE HIDDEN HEART OF BAJA are excellent accounts of travels and flights on and over this country. Each book is about 40% photographs of the sights and scenes encountered in this "Forgotten Land."

Personally, I had never been further south than Tijuana on the peninsula, so early last June, we (wife and three offspring) took off to see some new country. We have a 17 foot trailer which makes a comfortable home away from home. From Phoenix we went to Yuma and turned south, crossing the border at San Luis. The first night we stopped by the roadside west of San Luis. The second day we drove on through Mexicali, across the upper limits of Laguna Salada and up the steep slope of the Sierra De Juarez. La Rumorosa is situated at the top of this long uphill climb. It is a small village but the climate is most pleasant since it is about 5,000 feet high. The paved road continues on through Tecate and into Tijuana. We reached there just as the bullfight was in progress and it appeared that half the population of the United States was over there that Sunday afternoon to see the corrida. We threaded our way through the traffic and headed south toward Ensenada. That night we spent on a rocky bluff overlooking the Pacific Ocean. We were several miles north of El Descanso. The shoreline is very spectacular for miles and miles. The weather was overcast clouds, chill winds and it was cold. A fine mist in the evening changed to drizzle during the night and rain the next morning. We had come expecting hot weather and believe me, the Butane light and stove in the trailer felt good to our cold bones. From El Descanso, the highway moves inland across a high valley and comes out just north of Ensenada.

A new seaside route is under construction and should be very scenic. At least what we could see indicating that part of it would be hacked out of cliffs that spilled right down into the sea. Ensenada is a very attractive town and well kept. The streets are paved and curbed and the general impression is that of a lively, busy, active town of about 25,000 population. Of course it is a tourist town and you also get the impression that you are still in Southern California. As a port, Ensenada has been established for quite some time. It is situated on an immense bay, Todos Santos. About 8 miles south of town is located the immigration office. Here we got our 15 day tourist permits for $2.50 — .50 each for adults over 15 years old, .50 for the car and .50 for the trailer. It was simplicity itself—sign your name in a book (which you would cross out when you came back), number in the party, address, pay your fee and adios. A few miles further on at El Maneadero we turned off to Punta Banda, the point of land forming the southern arm of Todos Santos Bay. On the seaward side of Punta Banda is located the famous Ensenada Blowhole, or "La Bufadora." We camped that night near this sea geyser. The weather was still foul and with the high seas running, we were thrillingly entertained by the waves slamming into the blowhole and shooting 30 or 40 feet straight up in the air.

Here again we were on a rocky bluff mountains meeting the sea. The next day we had about 30 minutes of sunshine early in the morning, then the clouds moved back in. Returning to the main highway, we continued on south. Once more the road goes inland to avoid the rugged mountains along the shore. The lovely valley of Santo Tomas was a pleasant sight and the sun came out!

This valley is well known for the quality of the grapes grown here and for the wine produced from these vineyards. The well paved and maintained road winds south through valleys that gradually became less and less green and more and more desert. Through the little town of San Vicente the road drops down and turns back nearer to the seacoast. Despite what some of the road maps show, the pavement definitely ends at Arroyo Seco.

From here on to San Quintin Bay, which was as far as we went, it is a washboard. We stopped at Bradley's store at Colnett for gas, pop and beer and had lunch in his courtyard. Mr. Bradley is one of those individuals that make life so interesting. He is a retired employee of a light and power company in Los Angeles and several years ago decided he wanted to live in Colnett.

In memory of his deceased brother, he started a small first aid station which has grown until now he has the only hospital between Ensenada and Rosario. He has developed several doctors and dentists who fly down from the States on weekends to staff his little hospital. While we were there, he told us about a patient of his, an old fisherman who lived over on the shore at San Antonio Del Mar, who the night before had drunk so much Tequila he thought he could drive a motorcycle.

The old boy who must have been 70 years old found out he couldn't when the cycle wound up on top of him. He was lucky to only have a badly wrenched left ankle. Well we volunteered to take him to his home, 7 miles away. We were assured it was a good road, but I want to say now I don't want to haul a trailer over that "good" road again.

We know very little Spanish and the old man knew no English, so in low gear (we have a 4-speed Travelall), much arm and hand gesturing and frequent, ineffectual references to the Spanish dictionary we finally got him to his home on Antonio Del Mar. We camped on his beach of black sand. It rained all night and was really cold. The water was too cold for enjoyable swimming and that was a shame since it was a beautiful, broad, black sand beach.

We struggled back to Colnett about 10:00 the next morning and made a wise decision to leave the trailer, with Mr. Bradley's approval, in front of his hospital, while we took the 50 mile trip on down to San Quintin Bay. The only town of any size on this trip is Colonia Guerrero and it is the hub of quite a nice farming area. The road is all on the flats in arid desert country, just far enough inland so that only rarely do you catch a glimpse of the ocean. San Quintin Bay is really two bays—true bay and false bay.

Fifty or sixty years ago the English attempted to set up a flour milling operation here, utilizing a mill race between the upper and lower portions of the True Bay. It failed but much of the equipment and some of the old buildings still stand. Right next to it an American couple have built a small motel. The sun was shining and the air was cool. We drove around the True Bay and out onto the seaward side of False Bay. The contrast of the arid desert and the Blue-green placid surfaces of the bays made for an eye-filling view.

Well that's as far as we went into this intriguing country. Beyond Rosario, so I've heard is where the real jeep road starts. We turned back north, spent five cloudy, cold days at Ensenada at Estero Bay. Then to get warm, decided to go to Guaymas. We bypassed Tijuana going right to Tecate, then Mexicali, San Luis, The Devil's Highway to Sonoyta, Caborca, Santa Ana, Hermosillo and Guaymas. We spent a warm and lazy weekend there. Then north to Nogales and home with a carport to carport mileage of 2,981 miles. And still the question—What's it like south of San Quintin?

Remember, if you don't see it in the Chatter it's because YOU didn't write it down and send it in.

"Would you see about changing our address on the Chatter mailing list?" Mrs. Leona Cope of Chandler asked over the phone one day. I assured her that we would attend to it but that it would cost her something. This surprised her until I explained that we would like her favorite recipe for the Chatter. Bless her heart she didn't send one recipe but two. Here they are.

First an Applesauce Cake that keeps well and goes with the Cope family to Cholla Bay practically every trip. Sift . . . 2 cups cake flour, 1½ cups sugar, 1½ teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons cocoa; ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg and ½ teaspoon allspice into a mixing bowl. Add . . . ½ cup shortening, 1½ cups unsweetened applesauce and beat 200 strokes (2 minutes by hand or mixer at low speed), scrape bowl and beaters often. Add . . . 2 unbeaten eggs and beat 200 strokes same as before. Stir . . . in ¾ cup cut up dates, ¾ cup chopped raisins and 1 cup chopped nuts. Pour into 2 small well greased loaf pans or into an 8½ in. tube pan. On top of cake sprinkle mixture of 2 tablespoons chopped nuts and 1 tablespoon brown sugar. Bake until cake tests done and cool, remove from pan. Oven temperature 350°, baking time about 1½ hours.

The second recipe is one for baking fish in a somewhat unusual method. Mrs. Cope told me that this method produces a moist and delicious baked fish every time. Heat the oven to 350°. Take a 3 or 4 pound Pinto or Grouper salted and peppered and coat all over with mayonnaise or salad dressing. Roll fish in flour and use margarine or butter in a long baking dish or pan. Bake fish until it flakes from the bone. Use juice to baste fish and to make sauce to serve with it. Fish will be nice and brown. She sometimes uses tomato sauce in the sauce.

Thanks go to Mrs. Cope for sharing these recipes with us.

Thoughts On Sportsmanship

Here comes the 1964 hunting season. As I write this many of our friends are thinking about what to take on their antelope hunt or elk and buffalo (lucky devils who have special permits). Someone may get a shot at bear, mountain lion, turkey, squirrel or rabbit. Already there has been good hunting of dove and white wing this year with prospects of quail.

To get into the field and try for all this big game it takes plenty of time and money. With all the people who go there will surely be some dopes who act like they are wild and have no respect for others or for themselves. Guns and people who don't put their heads into gear are very dangerous.

Be prepared! Check your guns to see that they are in top shape. Take the correct ammunition. Be sure to take plenty of water, proper clothes, a compass is nice to take along provided one uses it and above all some matches in a waterproof case.

This next paragraph is to all old fishermen (over 25 years) who think they are as spry as ever. The best way not to get a kill of game you are after is to leave camp at a fast walk and progress about a mile at full tilt. Since most of us don't work hard enough to keep in good condition, this brisk walk will cause you to tire quickly and be out of breath. Next you jump a nice deer that runs over a small rise and you speed to the top. If you are lucky you won't see it again, (did I say lucky) yes, you read correctly. If you were to see said deer after this burst of effort chances are that most of us old war horses would be out of breath and the gun sights would be moving up and down like we were in a twelve foot boat in the middle of Cholla Bay with two red flags flying. The chance of hitting the animal is only by pure luck. The extra pressure put on one's heart, legs and lungs is a lot when the rest of the year we can't even walk to the corner store. So let's take a little more time preparing for this trip! Take some leg exercises, deep knee bends and sit-ups. Five to 10 at first increasing to 15-20 after a week. Sounds silly, so don't bother then when you get tired and out of wind and shaky and that shot goes wild don't say the rifle was out of adjustment. You are the one that's out of shape.

Remember! Don't shoot at sounds. People also make sounds and you don't want to shoot a hunter.

Estimating of distance is one thing that we are hunters do not practice like we should. You hear all the time of the fellow who shot one at 500 yards running. This might happen by accident or by chance. Not many standing shooters at 500 yards can even hit the targets. The U.S. Army does not use this long range much anymore. The target boards are 6' x 6' square with 36" bulls eyes and standing lots of men failed to get a bull in 5 shots; sitting or kneeling they got much better results; prone most men got some bulls. So it pays to use the best possible rest or position.

Snow or rain storms can come up fast and catch one out or in a bad campsite so pick a place with this in mind. Of course you would put out all fires and leave a clean camp. Be careful of fences, gates and any property that is in the area you hunt. Don't shoot road signs, tanks, barns or cattle.

Use good common sense and treat the forest as if you planned to return. I saw some people last year that should have been asked to stay out of the hunting area until they got more sense. They were very messy around their camp and worst of all they were shooting across roads and in and around houses and campsites.

Everybody be careful so we can all go fishing at Cholla Bay again when hunting season is over.

By golly, I was robbed! Not only of various mackerel and mullett by various sailfish and dolphin, but of more valuable type things such as clothes and money.

You know, I imagine that everyone who has a cabin at the Bay, is at one time or another, as stupid as I most obviously am, and by that I mean I'll flat go out fishing all day long leaving my castle plumb full of goodies and the crown jewels, wide open, just asking for a sneak-thief to walk in and help himself.

Having fished at the Bay area since 1946, and always leaving everything available with never so much as a toothpick missing upon my return from the fishing grounds I was lulled into a false sense of security.

Over the weekend of the 18th of July, I took 3 buddies down to my place for a sailfishing excursion. This was to be the 1st trip for 2 of them, Floyd Wilden and Bill Jarnigan, and about the 4th or 5th trip for the third, Fred Pankoke.

I wanted everything to be just right for them, but the way it turned out, I made everything just wrong. Wotta weekend! I started out by throwing a rod clean thru the side of the outboard motor block about 10 miles offshore our 1st day going out to blue water. Then later struck my pickup axel deep in the sand on the way to the estuary, got it finally unstuck and then blew a tire—then to top off this gay excursion, we waz robbed.

Sunday afternoon when the 4 of us and Hector Munro (who was piloting the Queen to operate Alberto's (Angle) 30 hp motor I'd borrowed) returned to camp, we found that someone had entered our little home away from home and helped himself to Floyd's Samsonite suitcase in which to gather up my boots and wallet, Bill's clean underwear, a shirt and his dress shoes, and Fred's wallet with 45 bucks in it and mine with 65 simoleins in it.

Thanks to the sharp eyes of little Manuel Chaparon and the speedy footwork of my buddy Frank Lopez, the thief was apprehended and our goodies were returned to us in short order. All except the dough, that is. This character had hidden the money before he was caught and we were unable to get him to say where. Oh well, easy come easy go.

The point of this whole deal, is the fact that I've been asking for it. I know for darn sure, that I wouldn't go off and leave my home in Phoenix unlocked and wide open with all my valuable belongings just asking to be picked up — so how come I do it at Cholla. Complacency and laziness is the only answer.

The local officials and all of our good Mexican friends do their utmost to protect us stupid gringos while we partake of their generous hospitality, but it's darn near impossible for them to watch every single cabin or every stranger that comes into the area. Cholla Bay is growing so fast, that to a dedicated thief, it appears to be a ripe plum, just asking to be picked.

Therefore, I've decided that instead of whining about the loss of my dough, I should take precautions to see that it doesn't happen again, and thank my lucky stars that Frank and Manuel were on the ball so that my embarrassment for my friend's losses were quickly rectified.

Don't let this happen to you, my friends, keep your goodies secured so that a stranger in the area won't be tempted to help himself because it's so darn easy.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Cecil,

Last time we were in Phoenix, we picked up a CHATTER at Bill Boyer's ARIZONA SPORTLAND. It was so full of places and people we are very fond of, that I had to write and tell you what a splendid job you are doing with the monthly bulletin. It is filled with members communicating their ideas and that is healthy.

Your elected Board of Directors and Officers deserve a great deal of admiration for the manner in which they are handling the many details created by any 'South of the Border' operation. Their labor of love is going to pay off in the long run. And everyone will benefit.

Our subdividing project in the high country will wind up after deer season then we will head back to Phoenix until next spring. Meanwhile we invite you and all the members to come see us. Autumn in the mountains is glorious, almost as lovely as a sunset over the Gulf. Regards to all, signed Don and Florence Zimmer.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Zimmers have Mountain View Park, from Phoenix drive north on Black Canyon highway to the Stoneman Lake turnoff, turn right and follow signs to Mormon Lake then follow the signs.

SURFSIDE COMMENTS

By Gene Henry

I feel I'm duty bound to report that my good friend, Bill Valentine, isn't the only one having miserable fishing luck this summer. Actually, I should use some other phrase than "fishing luck" after my last effort expounding upon the theory that it takes skill rather than luck to put fish in the skillet. Perhaps it would sound better if I said this summer has been a prolonged slump as far as surf fishing is concerned. Anyway, it isn't often I have an opportunity to place myself in the same class as Bill, so why not take advantage of it!

During the past two months, I have practically thrown my arm out of joint trying to tease up sea trout, mackerel, etc., and have used darned near every lure in the tackle box. All I have to show for it is one thoroughly disgruntled sting ray, a few skinny pompano, and a beautiful assortment of rocks and seaweed that I drug off the bottom. I have practically paved the ocean bottom from Pelican Point past Shelly Beach with lost spoons and the few spoons remaining have all the chrome worn off the bottom.

To top off my misery, I struck out on one of those rare opportunities surf fishermen encounter at Cholla Bay. The wife and I were strolling along Shelly Beach on a weekend in mid August and I was manfully attempting to show off my casting ability by throwing a spoon to a school of bait fish laying far offshore. Just as I finished making a spectacular cast, a school of mullet erupted right in front of us and the feathered dorsal fins of two huge rooster fish cut through the surf not more than 30 feet from where we were standing. As I stood there with my eyes bugging out, the roosters made two more quick passes through the school of mullet and disappeared as quickly as they had appeared. By the time I could reel in my lure and start casting in the direction they had last taken, there wasn't a ripple left on the water. My poor wife felt just as helpless as I looked—what can a woman do when a grown man starts blubbering like a six months old baby?

My son John and I did have an enjoyable sand buggy trip down to the Lower Estuary and St. Georges Bay over Labor Day with Clyde Baker and Don Zieser. We didn't have much success fishing but Clyde gave us a good demonstration of what a standard automobile stripped down to make a sand buggy can do. In addition, we got into a rare school of ladyfish inside the estuary at St. Georges and had a ball watching their aerial acrobatics. The ones Don and I tied into all threw the hook after a few spectacular jumps, but Clyde finally brought one in. They are a beautiful fish, but unfortunately are not good to eat. However, for a real thrill on light tackle they are hard to beat.

ALL WET

by Cecil Gary

Not being able to go to the Bay lately I took our sailboat to Canyon Lake and have had several nice weekends up there. The last trip was very interesting. It was the first time we capsized and got all wet. We learned a lot about getting it righted and the water out. We went over so easy. As we sat there and were trying to get it to come about into the wind the mast tipped farther and farther until the gunwale went under.

At first there was only a narrow stream of water creeping over the edge of the boat then it got wider and deeper and then the mast was flat on the water and we were all wet swimming around looking for oars, rudder and life preservers. After collecting these various items one of us stood on the center board and pulled the rail and up came the mast almost as easy as it went down. Here the leisure stopped.

The boat was all under the water except perhaps about 3 or 4 feet of the bow and of course the mast. The center board has a slot in the top which happens to be about 6" lower than the sides of the boat. Needless to say we were very green and new for while we furiously bailed with 2 plastic buckets we made no attempt to plug this opening. The secret is to take off your shirt and stuff it in the slot and stop the water.

Three fine young men towed us over near the shore where we emptied the boat, rigged it up and sailed off. The water was warm and this experience was a fun-filled lesson for us, but man, I'd hate to do that in December.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS of THE CHOLLA BAY SPORTSMEN'S CLUB

As Revised and Amended

As you know there is no provision in the current by-laws or Constitution for the formation of other chapters to this club. As the club grows there is a need for members in areas other than Phoenix and Tucson to be able to organize chapters and to have a voice in the management of our club.

The Constitution and By-laws that follow are not revised from the ones that are presently in force, but are a completely new set. For this reason it is important to you and your club for each member to carefully study them, and to come to the next membership meeting ready to discuss any ideas that you may have.

The Phoenix Board of Directors have tentatively approved them.
